Passenger Train Derailed; 11 Hurt

Illinois Central Passenger Train Wrecks In Miss.

Five of Fourteen Cars Are Derailed and Overturned.

TRAINS ARE DELAYED

Members Aboard Shaken Up But Not Seriously Injured.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—(AP)—Nine of fourteen cars attached to an Illinois Central passenger train number one, south bound from Chicago to New Orleans, derailed and overturned near Batesville, Miss., this morning, but other than a shaking up of members aboard, the casualty list reported from the scene of the wreck, confined to three trainmen and eight passengers who were treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Cause of the wreck has not been determined. The locomotive and rear pullmans did not leave the tracks. The train was made up of all steel equipment.

A wrecking crew was called Memphis, and it was expected it would be several hours before wreckage could be cleared off the right-of-way.

Try Completed to Try W. J. Jones

Is Believed To Be Implicated In Slaying of W. J. Weed

LITTLE ROCK, March 17.—(AP)—A jury was completed in circuit court here today to try Willie Jones Davis, negro, charged with first degree murder in connection with the killing of Alderman J. W. Weed in North Little Rock last July.

On negro, Eddie Long has been sentenced to death for the murder. The state charges Davis as a companion of Long in the robbing of the Weed grocery store which culminated in the slaying.

Star's Annual Event Will Be Staged in Saenger March 31-April 4

Many and varied have been the items offered to an epicurean palate as delicacies beyond price. Some of these have achieved more or less extended popularity.

Pate de foie gras and truffles, have long been heralded as menu items supreme. It was natural that Pate de foie gras should carry a German label of origin, although the name is French. In Germany, the lowly goose reaches his highest development as a table delicacy. In the valleys around Strassburg, Germany, the fields are white with geese ready to be taken to the pen, where, shut off from water and through intensive feeding, an enlargement of the liver is secured, free from strong taint or richness, which provides the backbone for a world wide delicacy.

Truffles are hunted industriously in the leafy aisles of the German forests, with the aid of hogs, specially trained for the purpose. They locate the truffles and root them out for their masters. In America Terapula Maryland, has been renowned since anti-bellum days. Frogs of Alsace furnished an entire nation with a characterizing epithet, for who has not heard of "frog eaters," referring to the French.

On the other hand, so common an TOPEKA, Kansas, March 17.—(AP)—Governor Clyde M. Reed today telegraphed to his office from El Paso, Texas, to grant extradition to Colorado authorities for three men who are alleged to have killed a deputy sheriff near Eads, Colo., last Friday after robbing the State bank at Minnetonka, Kansas.

LITTLE ROCK, March 17.—(AP)—E. Buick and R. W. Cornish of the bureau of municipal research of New York, arrived here today to start a survey of state governmental administration. The survey was ordered by Governor Parnell, who conferred with the two workers upon their arrival here.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Prohibition administrators of several states today were asked by prohibition commissioner Doran to obtain samples of the Jamaica ginger which caused a strange paralysis to a number of drinkers in the southern states.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—The senate today approved a proposed modification of Odie Hayde, a leather and shoe tariff amendment. This would be a cut of 17 1/2 to 10 per cent on goat and kid leather.

Annual Hospital Campaign Begins in City Tuesday

Canvassing Committee To Solicit Hospital Memberships

$2,000.00 IS SOUGHT

Julia Chester Does Much For Medical Charity Each Year

Ten men and women will take the field Tuesday to solicit memberships in the annual campaign of the Hope and Hempstead County Hospital, association to support charity work in Julia Chester hospital.

Last year the hospital spent for immediate charity relief $1,086.85, according to Syd McMath, secretary-treasurer of the association. Its annual bill for free medical service to city and county residents frequently runs as high as $2,000, and this is the goal which the membership drive tomorrow is expected to reach.

Most of the hospital's $11,000 annual expense is met out of fees from pay patients, but as Julia Chester is the only public hospital in the county, it faces great demands from the poor and sick, which must be met by popular subscription. Annually, it is given a good deal of money, merchandise and food by the citizens of this section in tribute to the work which the hospital performs every day in the year.

The canvassing committees in the membership drive tomorrow are as follows:

Elm Street: Mrs. J. T. West and Mrs. Frank Miller.

White Street: Mrs. Charles Lowthorp and Mrs. E. O. Wingfield.

Second Street: Mrs. Carter Johnson and Mrs. Nick Jewell.

Outlying District South of Second Street: Sid McMath and L. C. Johnson.

Outlying District North of Second Street: C. W. Wollman and E. S. Greening.

Ministers Testify in Oil Bribery Case

Joe Carey Identifies Doheny's Signature On Official Paper.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Defense counsel for Edward L. Doheny, charged with bribery, today introduced four ministers who testified to Doheny's high character and other witnesses whom attorneys attempted to prove responsible for the lease of Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve to a Doheny company through the naval department and not through Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior.

Doheny is charged with giving a bribe of $100,000 to Fall to influence him to award the Elk Hills oil reserve to the wealthy oil man's company.

Joe Carey, witness, identified Doheny's signature on a paper ordering plans for construction of the Pearl Harbor oil station facilities to be carried out.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Carrie Estelle Doheny, wife of Edward L. Doheny, took the witness stand in his trial on a charge of bribery, to tell of the loan of $100,000 Doheny made to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior in November, 1921.

EL PASO, March 17.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, who is ill here preventing him from attending the trial of his friend Edward L. Doheny, said today he hoped his condition would improve so that he could go to Washington before the close of defense counsel.

Five Sailors Are Injured at Manila

Riot Thought To Be Caused by Communists and Gangsters.

MANILA, March 17.—(AP)—Five American sailors were nursing injuries today as a result of riot with Philippine civilians at Manila field yesterday during a baseball game. An American officer, C. K. West held the disturbance quiet with armed weapons until police and naval patrol officers arrived.

Details of what caused the fight is not known, but some say they thought it was inspired by Communists or gangsters.

Announcement

With today's edition, Roy Allen joins The Star as plant superintendent.

Although a young man, he has had a long and enviable record with newspapers and printing, and next to Ed McCorkle is more closely associated with the history of this city and county than any other printer or newspaper man now living here.

Roy joined W. W. Folsom of the Hope Weekly Gazette 22 years ago. His first job was a 6 by 9 dodger, 5,000 copies, ordered by a citizens' committee campaigning to remove the courthouse to Hope.

Col. Folsom's printing office was on Second street about where the Searcy-Trimble Abstract company's rooms are now located, to be replaced later by the Citizens National Bank building.

But his stay with Col. Folsom was brief, and he joined Ed McCorkle and his father L. C. McCorkle in the Star of Hope office, then located on South Main street where the Postoffice Cafe now stands. Roy got his training in newspapers and printing there. He was associated continuously with the McCorkles up to the World War.

On his return, in 1920 he joined Curtis Cannon in a printing venture, but subsequently rejoined Ed McCorkle. Associated with the Star of Hope then were the other McCorkle brothers, A. B. (Skeet) and Claude McCorkle, who are now in Little Rock.

An interesting co-incidence is this: When Roy went to work for Col. Folsom 22 years ago, the foreman who hired him was Chris Westerman, Chris is The Star's veteran job printer today, and 22 years after their first meeting, finds them again under the same roof.

Cannon Formally Enters Campaign

Hope Man Launches Attack in Race for Lieutenant Governor

Curtis Cannon, anti-administration leader in the House of Representatives during the last session of the legislature announced today that he would be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Mr. Cannon led the fight in 1929 to prevent the passage of the omnibus tax bill and after its passage successfully waged a campaign for its repeal. He was author of a bill to audit the records of the Arkansas State Highway Department and investigate the handling of road affairs by the highway commission.

He also led the fight in the House against the highway reorganization bill, which provided for appointment of members of the highway commission.

Mr. Cannon has lived his entire life in Arkansas. He is a graduate of Ouachita Baptist College at Arkadelphia, is married and the father of three children. He is 30 years of age, just old enough to meet the constitutional provisions of the office.

During the war he served with the American air forces in France. Since that time he has been engaged in newspaper work in the state, except

Nashville To Get New Legion Post

Little Rock Officials Join Hope Legionnaires in Program Tonight

Two state officials of the American Legion met the executive committee of the Hope post at luncheon today in Hotel Barlow to discuss policies and local plans, which include the formation of a Legion post at Nashville tonight.

The visiting officers were R. W. Sisson, business manager of the Arkansas Legionnaire, and Claude Brown, secretary of the Veterans Service Bureau, both of Little Rock.

They were met here by local legionnaires headed by Post Commander Barney Hamm. Immediately after luncheon they left by automobile for Nashville where they will spend the afternoon surveying the number of ex-service men in that city. Hope legionnaires will go to Nashville tonight to formally organize that city's post.

Father of Hope Man Dies After Operation

J. A. Barentine, aged 52, died in a hospital at Texarkana Saturday afternoon at 3:30 following an operation.

Mr. Barentine was the father of Mr. Colbert Barentine, pharmacist at Bryant's drug store in this city.

The body was buried at Amity Sunday afternoon.

DESCRIBED AS TOUGH

Both Men and Women Participate In Gun Battle

EL DORADO, March 17.—(AP)—Three persons were in a hospital today, a fourth wounded and a fifth in jail after a gun battle which both men and women participated in what was described by officers as "one of the toughest places in the South Arkansas oil fields."

The gun battle occurred about midnight Saturday. Bill Long was shot once in the abdomen, his wife, Mrs. Nora Long, also shot in abdomen, and Mrs. Aileen Lyle, shot three times, were not expected to live. W. J. Foster, in whose tent the battle was waged, had two fingers shot off. He was arrested after the shooting and is held in jail at Camden.

Officers were told the shooting started when Mrs. Lyle and Jess Foster entered W. J. Foster's tent and accused the latter's visitor, Becca Ratliff, of improper relations with W. J. Foster's orphan niece, Mrs. Long remonstrated and was shot by Mrs. Lyle. Long then entered the tent and was shot by Mrs. Lyle, witnesses said. Long grappled with Ratliff, wrested his gun from him and fired at Mrs. Lyle. In the meantime, Mrs. Lyle was firing the remaining bullets in her gun at W. J. Foster.

Hospital attendants here said there was slight hope of recovery of the three.

150 Farmers Visit City Soy Bean Day

365 of 600 Bushel Car Sold Up To 2 O'Clock This Afternoon

More than 150 farmers—most of them from Hempstead county—visited the Missouri Pacific's Soy Bean Exhibit Car on the local tracks today, celebrating the first Soy Bean day in this county.

They bought 365 bushels of soy beans up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, out of the total of 600 bushels ordered in a special co-operative car which is still standing on the tracks downtown. All morning farmers have been driving up to the car in trucks and hauling away bags of seed which are designed to help the county's dairy feedstuff campaign.

The seed has been sold today virtually at cost, $4 per bushel, but the contract between Hope Chamber of Commerce, the University Extension Service, Missouri Pacific Line, and Monte Seed Store, ends tonight. After tonight the balance of the car will be disposed of by Monte Seed Store at $4.75 a bushel, the slight additional charge representing Mr. Monte's margin on the handling of the entire co-operative shipment.

Any seed remaining in the car tonight will be unloaded and transferred to Monte Seed Store, Walnut street, where it will be disposed of in a day or two.

Soy Bean day surpassed all expectations of the dairy committee of Hope Chamber of Commerce, and County Agent Lynn Smith. Practically every visitor at the Missouri Pacific exhibit car was a dirt farmer, who was vitally interested in the details of the dairy feed program. Not as many local business men visited the car as was hoped for, but the committee was encouraged by the attendance from the farm communities, and the spirited sale of soy beans which began early today.

The exhibits in the car, which was an old passenger coach fitted up with booths on one side and a narrow auditorium on the other, showed the various stages of soy bean crops, from planting to harvest time, the plant value of soy beans, and its products such as soil, cake and meal.

Soy Bean day was to be concluded this afternoon with a brief program of speaking at Hope city hall, with addresses by E. A. Hodson, agricultural agent of the Missouri Pacific, who is accompanying the car; Loy Rast, farmer-banker of Newport; and Roy Anderson, chairman of the dairy committee of Hope Chamber of Commerce.

7th Champion for Star Spelling Bee

Elwin Salisbury, Sixth Grader, To Represent Holly Grove.

Elwin Salisbury, aged 12, of the sixth grade, will represent Holly Grove, District No. 49, in The Star's county-wide spelling bee to be held at Hope city hall next Saturday.

Elwin spelled down everybody in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, and was awarded the championship of his school. He was the seventh champion to be announced thus far, and makes five boys and two girls who have won in the preliminary contests.

A total of approximately 60 champions is expected by the time the final event begins at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, for The Star's three cash prizes.

All local champions are being reported to E. E. Austin, county superintendent, at the city hall, and the names are published in The Star as fast as reported.

Dr. Robins Leaves for New Orleans

Disposes of Hospital Interest to Dr. G. E. Cannon

Dr. R. R. Robins, associated with Dr. G. E. Cannon in Josephine Hospital, for the last two years, has disposed of his interest to Dr. Cannon and gone to New Orleans to spend a year and a half in medical research. Dr. Robins while in New Orleans will specialize at Tulane university in eye, ear, nose and throat work. He expects to return to Hope after completing his course there.

It was announced by Dr. Cannon today that his daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Ward, is the new business manager of the hospital, and will supervise the buying of supplies, and the handling of records and other business details. Josephine Hospital has just completed its 16th year at Third and Main streets. It is caring for about 400 patients a year.

Crop of 100 Cars; Growers Install Much Equipment

Thousands of Dollars Spent for Vats and Loading Platforms

STUDENTS TO HELP

Schools Open Hour Earlier To Give Extra Labor in Afternoon

By Pete Mayne
STAFF Correspondent The Star
BLEVINS, March 17.—The annual radish crop of northern Hempstead county—which is known all over the United States—will begin moving here Tuesday.

It will be the largest crop of radishes and mustard greens to be harvested in years, and the harvest last about five weeks.

The growers at Blevins, McCaskill, Dunlap, Arcadia and Deanyville have spent thousands of dollars in new equipment. Large concrete vats have been built to take care of the washing; new platforms have been erected or old ones extended, to take care of the bumper crop.

Tons of fertilizer have been bought. H. M. Stephens, at Blevins, alone sold 20 tons of seed. It is estimated that over one hundred cars will move from this district this season.

Nothing but the best quality radishes and greens will be shipped to compete with the radishes that are now on the market from various points in Texas and the Rio Grande valley. Should the grower bring a low quality radish to the vat for washing it will not be accepted.

Arrangements have been made with the different superintendents of school to start their classes one hour sooner than usual, which will give the students an opportunity to get to the fields by three o'clock for picking. All field labor is paid for at the rate of one hundred bunches; but at the vats and loading docks, labor will be paid by the hour.

People who have never seen this industry when it is in full swing should make plans to come to north Hempstead county and see the acres and acres of radishes and greens that are about to be harvested, and follow the procedure from the time the seed is planted until the radishes are packed in the baskets ready for market.

Should the growers get a fair price this year it will be an inducement to growers to plant a fair-sized crop for the fall harvest. After the radish crop has been harvested, the grower will use the same land either for tomatoes or cantaloupes.

The rain in this section last Saturday was a great boon for the grower, and warm weather coupled with fair prices will increase the growers earnings by a big per cent over previous seasons.

Couches Honored at Calhoun Dinner

Appreciation Shown for Gifts of Family To School District

MAGNOLIA, March 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Couch and C. P. Couch were guests of honor at an "appreciation dinner" given by the patrons of the Calhoun school district Saturday night.

The dinner served in the auditorium of the Harvey C. Couch school building, under the direction of the Domestic Science class, was attended by some 100 patrons of the school and intended as a public acknowledgment of appreciation and gratitude for contributions made by the honorees to the educational facilities of the district. Mr. Couch gave the building. Mrs. Couch equipped the domestic science department, and C. P. Couch presented the piano.

A Matter of Contrast

LIFE in the United States brings some queer contrasts ever so often. A few days ago William Howard Taft, former president and former chief justice of the United States, was buried in Arlington cemetery. High honors were paid him. His body lay in state in the national capitol and 10,000 people filed through to pay their last homage to one of the nation's foremost citizens.

Now it happened, by some ironic twist of fate, that on the very same day a Chicago gang leader named John Oberta, nicknamed Dingbat, was buried in Chicago. Oberta had met his death through a gangland machine gun, murdered in the typical Chicago style, and Chicago's gangland gave him a very swell funeral.

There were 15,000 people out of Oberta's rites. His coffin cost $15,000, and was covered with a blanket of orchids. Four automobiles full of flowers went to the cemetery with the hearse. The funeral procession was two blocks long.

All of this happened at the same time that ex-president Taft was being buried, was rather startling. It made a strange spectacle, a gangster getting a funeral nearly as spectacular and costly, and even better attended, than a president of the United States.

The whole thing is eloquent about the state of things in our modern civilization. It will be a valuable item for historians some day.

Our standards are so mixed up, so confused, that an underworld gang chieftain is one of the important men of the country. While he lives he has vast power, riches and fame. When he dies he gets a $15,000 casket, and his obsequies vie with those of a president.

That's America in the year 1930. When, do you suppose, will we wake up and adopt a better kind of standards?

"Doing Their Darndest."

PRESIDENT HOOVER, having retired the official spokesman, has found two equivalents aside from his own personal statements issued from the White House. One is the unofficial newspaper story (the president favors the tariff bill as revised by the coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans). The other is the communicative visitor to the White House.

To the latter group belongs Chester Rowell, former editor and publisher of the Fresno, Cal., Republican. Mr. Rowell recently addressed the Hartford branch of the foreign policy association. In the course of his remarks on the London conference he stated that he had talked the matter over with the president whom he quoted as follows: "Seven of the most eminent men of America are now over there doing their darndest to secure reduction—let them alone."

Both the manner and the substance of the statement are refreshing if accurate.

The president is in a position to know more about what is going on in London than the readers of the newspapers. He receives, or should receive, full confidential reports at all stages of the proceedings. It is reassuring that the seven eminent Americans are doing their utmost to secure reduction. It was for reduction that the conference was called.

An amplification of the president's statement would probably explain why so little intimation of reduction has come out of the official reports of the conference.

Reduction, it has now become clear, is a relative term hedged about with "if's." America will reduce if Great Britain reduces. Great Britain will reduce if France reduces. France will reduce if Italy modifies her claims and if the reduction does not threaten the security of the nation.

Doing one's darndest under such circumstances must be a trying affair. However, one's darndest is about all that one can do. The moral is that one should not talk one's darndest until one knows that the darndest one can do will justify the talk.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

A Good Job

THE action of the New York supreme court in ruling Magistrate Albert Vitale off the bench is a step in the right direction.

Vitale borrowed $20,000 from the late Arnold Rothstein, notorious gambler. He released an alleged robber, over the violent objection of the police, who was defended by a lawyer hired by Rothstein. A dinner given in his honor was held up by gunmen and a detective's gun was stolen—to be returned to the detective, two hours later, by Vitale himself.

Obviously, such a man had no place on the bench. His present there simply served to bring the law into disrepute. It is good to read that he has been ousted—even if we weren't in his jurisdiction ourselves.

A Quaint Old Spanish Custom!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Elements of the spectacular, the dramatic and the historic entered into the oil tariff battle which ended with the defeat of the flying wedge of southwestern independent oil producers who poured into Washington at the last minute and undertook to stampede the Senate into putting a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil and a 50 per cent ad valorem duty on gasoline.

The oil men's invasion threatened temporarily to change the whole aspect of the tariff fight. When a trainload of 200 or more came and moved into expensive quarters for a startling demonstration of high pressure lobbying most observers here thought this late onslaught was rather funny in its seeming futility and that the oil men were just taking a trip. But before they were through they had leaders of the Senate coalition thoroughly scared lest their trading combination with sugar, lumber and leather senators and lobbyists should be successful with regard to those products and also open up opportunities for various other lobbies previously stymied.

A Terrific Fight

The oil men lost their duty, 39 to 27, but only after the combination had lost in its first test of strength on lumber by a mere five votes. They had started with only two or three senators on their side, they had presented a good strong argument to the country and perhaps, as President Wirt Franklin of the Independent Petroleum Association says, they really won a moral victory.

One of the weirdest features of the show was that all but one or two of the dear old Progressive Republicans were placed in the light of voting for Andrew W. Mellon and the Rockefeller interests. For the independents wanted the duties to protect themselves from the cheap imported oil of Mellon's Gulf oil interests, the Standard interests and the Shell interests. The oil tariff fight brought out the complete cleavage between the "big fellows" with foreign wells, and the smaller purely domestic producers, and warning was given that if something wasn't done the little fellows would have to go out of business and surrender everything to Standard, Gulf and Shell.

The way most of the coal state senators piled in with the oil state senators was also significant. Coal operators and coal miners took the position that cheap fuel oil was displacing more than 100,000,000 tons of coal a year, maintaining disastrous conditions in the coal fields.

Some of the best known men in Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas piled into a special train early in February and came here for the whirlwind campaign. It seemed that they had fallen in with the so-called Hoover curtailment of production program, with the idea that the biggest companies would cut their importations, but the big companies hadn't, and in January prices on crude oil had gone down an average of 30 cents a barrel, threatening independent operators with alleged ruin.

They held a big pep meeting in a House caucus room attended by various members of Congress and went to work on everyone they could reach, as if they had learned all the best methods of lobbying as disclosed before the Caraway investigating committee. Ex-Senators Harrell, Owen and Gore of Oklahoma seemed busy on the Senate floor. Few senators, apparently, were not approached by small delegations of independent oil men. They "built fires" for senators back home, having some deluged with telegrams. They talked trades of votes with anyone who might be willing to trade.

Fiddlers Contest Enjoyable to All

All Records Broken On Attendance, Old Timers Do Their Stuff

The ninth annual fiddlers contest held last Thursday night at the Blevins high school auditorium broke all records over previous contests. There was no accurate check taken on the attendance, but long before the program opened the auditorium was packed to capacity. The gross receipts were $200. There were entries from all over southwest Arkansas. M. L. Nelson acted as master of ceremonies, and Miss Eva Junkin assisted. There were more entries than ever before, and the program was well worked out under direction of Mr. Nelson. A quilt was given away preceding opening of the program, the prizes being on the high school foot suits that were bought last fall. The school realized about $30. Miss Gorham won the quilt. Following are the prize winners in fiddlers contest: Two prizes were awarded in the vocal reading class: Miss Reba May as the first prize, and Miss Ethel Stephens, second. First prize went to Zack Stone, of the home for the violin solo entitled "Sweet Bunch of Daisies," and Stone also won first money in a violin solo entitled "Carolina Girl." There were two prizes on string bands. Sweet Home taking the first prize and the Watermelon Band of Hope taking second. A violin solo entitled "Wagoner" was won by Dallas Brown of McCaskill. Another violin solo in a different class was won by Arliss Jones of Bowdin, this selection was entitled "Wednesday Night Waltz." The Hope Quartette won first prize in that class. Montgomery of the Sweet Home Community won first prize in banjo picking. Last but not least Bob Dugan of New Liberty won first prize as the ugliest fiddler. Plans are now being formulated for the 1931 contest.

Farmers Buying New Implements

Local Hardware Merchant Having Busiest Season Since Opening

Optimism prevails in northern Hempstead county after a survey of the progressive farmers. The illustration, Roy Foster, local hardware merchant, states that he had eight cultivators, five planters and four fertilizer distributors in a day and a half last week. More diversification is planned for 1936 than ever before and the truck growers of this section are looking forward to a banner year. Along with the crop of radishes, greens, tomatoes and canteloupes there will be hundreds of acres of sweet corn. This will be one of the major crops in years to come. Should the market be weak on this one commodity it can be utilized as feed.

P. T. A. Gets Neat Income on Sales

Total $84 Realized From Three Promotions For The Week

The Blevins P. T. A. enjoyed a very good week as far as finances is concerned. The net income on a concession booth at the high school last Thursday night was $28.

Their share of the gate receipts from the contest netted them $40. A cake sale held last Saturday made them a net sum of $16, making a total of $84. This amount will more than pay off their indebtedness, and will leave a neat sum in the treasury. Their next meeting will be held on Thursday night, and the question of buying books will be discussed.

Drug Co., and Superintendent L. Moore of the McCaskill public schools spent the week end in Little Rock, and Conway.

Gay Lively, of McCaskill was in Blevins on Saturday where he was transacting business.

Menus for Family

BY SISTER MARY NEA Service Writer

MANY delicious jams and con-serves can be made from canned and dried fruits.

Less time and effort are needed for these preserves than for those made from fresh fruits and at this time of year, when the supply is steadily diminishing, a few jars of the easily made jams will be well worth making.

Raisin chutney is delightfully spicy as an accompaniment for meats or fish. It is not expensive and requires very little "fussing" in its preparation.

Raisin Chutney

Two cups seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon ground cloves, 1-4 teaspoon ground nutmeg, 2 oranges, 1 lemon, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1-2 cup English walnut meats.

Squeeze juice from oranges and lemon and pull inside connecting tissues from rind. Cut rind in very fine shreds and add with sugar and spices to raisins. Bring slowly to the boiling point and simmer 20 minutes. Add sugar and cook slowly until mixture thickens when a teaspoonful is tested on a cold saucer. Add nuts and cook five minutes longer. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin.

Apricot and pineapple jam is particularly good with fish menus. The combination of dried and canned fruit is unusual.

Apricot and Pineapple Jam

Two cups dried apricots, 2 cups grated or crushed pineapple, 2 cups light brown sugar.

Scrub apricots well and cook overnight in water to cover. Steam and rub through a sieve. Combine apricots with pineapple and sugar and cook until pineapple is transparent and the mixture is thick. Pour into sterilized jars and seal while hot.

Canned fruit that is not popular as a sauce can be rubbed through a sieve and combined with extra sugar to make a plain fruit "but-ter." Lemon or orange juice can be added if the fruit needs plumpness.

Candidate in North Carolina

If Josiah William Bailey of Raleigh is elected to succeed Senator Farnford M. Simmons of North Carolina, Washington's population will be increased by five bright youngsters. Here are Bailey, his wife, Mrs. Edith Pou Bailey, and their five children: Sally, 2; Edith, 4; Josiah, 6; Elizabeth, 9, and Pou, 12. Bailey, now 67, was married at 42.

This Hen Sure Knew Her Eggs

What is considered to be the largest egg on record is now on display at the A. R. Thompson store at Blevins. The dimensions of the egg are four and one half inches in circumference, four and one quarter inches in length, and it weighs a fraction over three ounces.

The hen is of the Rhode Island strain, and Mr. Thompson, who is the proud owner, says he has only four in his flock, and this hen now is setting. The shell of the egg is much harder than usual, and it is thought that it has a triple yolk. He says he may send it to Mr. Ripley's "Believe it or not" column which is appearing in national newspapers.

'Vagabond King' Is Artistic Triumph

Full of Intriguing Shadows of 15th Century France.

Breath-taking in its dazzling splendor and eering in the warmth of its perfectly blended colorings, "The Vagabond King," Paramount's screen adaptation of Rudolph Friml's justly famous opera, is considered to be the most costly and beautiful mounted picture to come from this company's Hollywood studios since the advent of talking pictures.

Photographed throughout by the newly perfected Technicolor process, "The Vagabond King" is the creation of the imaginative artist. The grandeur of the sets, 55 of them, is magnificent in each detail. The shadowy, winding streets of fifteenth century Paris, the Paris of mystery and intrigue, are faithfully reproduced. It is these crooked, twisting, cobbled streets that lead into the torch-lighted taverns, underground channels of romance, vulgarity and bravery, where the rabble sing, drink, love and rail against their weak, indecisive king.

And it is in such setting that the swaggering vagabond, poet and swordsmen, Francois Villon, inflames the rabble of Paris with biting song. "King Louie loves to sleep so much, we really should endeavor, to figure out a way for him, to stay asleep forever."

One of the most beautiful scenes of all is that of the famous Notre Dame cathedral, an exact reproduction. It is here as the choir lifts its voice to heaven that Villon, who had "stars for candles and roses for playthings" first sees and falls in love with the blinding beauty of Lady Katherine Vaucelles, the niece of the King. This interior of Notre Dame, even to the reproduction of its world-renowned stained glass, is a miraculous achievement in color photography.

Other scenes that are sure to command attention are the rose garden scene, a veritable fairy land, where Villon and Katherine sing the beautiful ballad, "Only a Rose," the mad throne room of the king, where the vagabond holds forth for his seven day "temporary" reign, the out-laying camp of the Burgundian army, lit by thousands of camp fires, and countless other scenes of grandeur and splendor that will delight the eye and stir the imagination.

In the leading role of the "vagabond king" is Dennis King, the famous Broadway star who originally created this role in "The Vagabond King's" New York engagement at the Casino Theatre. Playing opposite King is Jeanette MacDonald, the titan-haired prima donna, who scored so favorably with Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade."

Others in the cast include O. H. Heggie, the well known star of the legitimate stage, Lillian Roth, Paramount's newest ingenue, and Warner

SCHOOL NOTES

The Juniors entertained the Seniors last Tuesday evening at the J. J. Bruce home, and Loyal Bruce was host.

Miss Colle Tanner returned Monday after a weeks absence spent at the home of her sister at Smackover who has been ill the past few months.

Superintendent Harold Branch accompanied the science class to Hope last Friday where they enjoyed the different demonstrations at the state experiment farm.

H. L. Lay spent the week end at his home in Armit visiting relatives and friends. He accompanied Harold Branch as far as Murfreesboro.

Another month will soon be over, and we would like to see every student with nothing but A's and B's on their department cards. There has been several changes in the list each week, and this month looks as though the prize winners will be pushed a little harder than the past one. Below are the names of the high five in each grade that stood the highest in their classes for week ending March 14. First grade: Ralph Harris, Wayne Boreland, Barton Smith, H. L. McRae, and Naomi Nivens. Second grade: Hazel Holloman, Doris Osburn, J. W. Foster, John Byrum, and Coy Zummwalt. Third grade: Howard Hoena, Arlis Brooks, Cleth Taylor, Cecil Ward and Udell Wardlow. Fourth grade: Leo Woods, Ena Fern Stephens, Agnes Brown, T. S. Bailey and Gertrude Irvin. Fifth grade: Billie Brooks, James Brown and Mary Sue Smith. Sixth grade: Mary Louise Bailey, Audrey Ferrell, C. W. Edwards, Junior Mullens and Austin Hendrix. Seventh grade: Bernice Daniels, Herman Smith, Ruby Johnson, Marie Ward and Opal Yates. Eighth grade: Ruth Harris, Violet Cross, Ella Puyar, Lucille Lee and Darliss Houser.

The county spelling bee sponsored by the Hope Star will be held at Hope on Saturday March 22. Students of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades are qualifying from the Blevins schools. Elimination matches will be held this week and the champion of all three grades will be sent to Hope next Saturday to compete with other schools in Hope and Hempstead county.

Misses Ruby Adams and Eva Junkin spent Saturday in Hope shopping.

Superintendent Harold Branch spent the week end with Mrs. Branch at Murfreesboro.

Our Poultry Column

Edited by Prof. Frederic H. Stoneburn

Without charge, our readers may secure expert personal advice on poultry topics. Address inquiries to Southern Poultry Bureau, Box 728, Memphis, Tenn. State your problems fully; enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

THE first official laying competition in America opened November 1, 1911. Actively opposed by many who it was intended to benefit and ridiculed by a considerable part of the public, the great practical value of the contest soon became apparent and today official events of this character are being conducted in all parts of America. That they are playing a mighty important role in the upbuilding of the industry is universally acknowledged.

The poultryman who takes his business seriously will do well to enter his birds in one or more of these competitions. If he is so fortunate as to produce a high record bird or pen he will instantly find ready sale for his surplus stock, and at good prices, as a result of the favorable publicity he receives. But more important than this is the accurate information thus secured regarding his strain; detailed production records of each bird and their performance as compared with that of layers of many breeds and strains entered by poultrymen from widely-separated parts of the country.

ON the above basis, then, let's horns intended for entry in competitions starting the first of October should be hatched in late April and Reds in late March.

In this connection reference must again be made to the variable factors influencing rate of growth and steps should be taken to meet this situation. It is suggested that several lots of chicks, say three of four, be hatched at ten-day intervals, some prior to and others later than the date first suggested. By following this plan one should have, from one or other of these hatches, a certain number of pullets coming to productive age about the first of October, whether the flock as a whole has developed too early or too late. Then the final selection of the contest birds may be made from among individuals which are ready to go.

SINCE a change to new quarters very commonly upsets the layers, some breeders who specialize in contest work go to considerable trouble to prevent this. They build poultry houses which are exactly like those used at the contest plant and which their pullets are to be sent and equip these with fixtures of the type used at the contest plant and arranged in exactly the same manner. In these the pullets are housed for some weeks before being shipped to the contest. Thus, while the birds go into different houses they find all surroundings exactly like those to which they have been accustomed, so the feeling of strangeness does not exist and the newcomers promptly feel at home. (Copyright, International Sugar Feed Co., Memphis.)

on the Pacific Coast, the navy wardrobe department, finally sent a navy tailor and had him make the odd-sized uniforms to order.

In this new laugh-film Dane plays the part of a hard-boiled boy who is put under a hypnotic trance and made to disport himself in ridiculous fashion for the benefit of the mates when he attends a performance given by a vaudeville musician, played by Arthur. Later he enters a thrur into the service so that he can get his revenge on him. Their love is heightened when they both fall in love with the same girl, a pretty operator in a photograph gallery, played by Josephine Dunn.

It finally did happen. One of Scott's sparring partners hauled away and biffed "my Phillip" upon the beeper, whereat the Swallowing Swan swooned to the Axminster.

his eighthole tours of the Ormond Beach Golf Club, Mr. Rockefeller seemed to epitomize much that golf has done to put outdoor sports and recreation in America on a scale thought impossible a few years ago and unapproached anywhere else in the world. Golf "teachers many things," Mr. Rockefeller observed. Toward it he exhibits a fine philosophy and a tranquility of spirit that many, if not most of the game's followers find somewhat difficult to develop.

If it is a good shot, Mr. Rockefeller is as delighted as any beginner. If it is not, he considers that a part of the game, too; perhaps to be redeemed later. His game has the advantage of steadiness, of direction and consistency, rather than length or power that belongs to youth. He is content with it and has found many of his happiest days and moments in the brief round that is a part of his retired life.

In Mr. Rockefeller's lifetime, golf has come and conquered America. Boys and girls, young men and women, share the course with him now, where in his own youth, the sport was not even in its "barnyard" stage. It had not yet been introduced to the country. Mr. Rockefeller himself did not take up the game until he was around 60, an achievement in itself and one to which no other outdoor sport or skill could point.

Washington & Jefferson College, with an enrollment of scarcely more than 500 students, has held its own in the big-time college football circuit much longer than most of the "Davids" of the gridiron. Center College, when it came out of the Kentucky hills to slay some of the big ones, had only about 250 students but it was only a flare-up. St. Mary's College near San Francisco, has turned out a succession of great teams from a student enrollment of about 700 and had the best record in 1929 of any team on the Pacific Coast.

Years ago, the University of the South (Sewanee) turned out some of the best teams in Dixie from a mere handful of less than 150 students. There was a rule at the time which placed any institution with under 150 students in the prep school class and one of the Sewanee stars took advantage of this, after four years of competition, to play there more on Raising the piston displacement limit from 91½ to 366 cubic inches will help greatly to restore speed lost by carrying mechanics, they believe.

Drivers and designers have tried to overcome the loss of the superchargers, which the association also blackballed for this year's races.

Louie Schneider, Indianapolis driver, was among the first to get his car ready for the season. He expects to put it through trials soon.

His car is typical of most of the new crop. It is 31½ inches wide at the cockpit, where the one-man cars spread 18 or 19 inches. It is a little lower and a little wider in the radiator and he believes it will travel 108 miles an hour.

Louie Meyer, American racing champion of 1928 and 1929, has under construction here a car with 16 cylinders, the greatest number ever planned for the 500-mile race.

Murder Backstairs

©1930 by NEA SERVICE, INC.

by ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DORIS MATTHEWS, lady's maid, in murdered Friday night in a rooming house on the back stairs by a blow with a heavy perfume flask, and the body, rock-weighted and tied with CLARA HUNTER BERKELEY's handkerchief, dumped into the lake where it was found Saturday morning by DETECTIVE ARNOLD DUNDEE, house guest of the Berkeley's, who announced CAPTAIN STRAWN of the homicide squad. Members of household are:

MR. and MRS. GEORGE BERKELEY, who quarreled Friday night over Clara's engagement to SEYMOUR CROSBY, of New York, close friend of the accused; GEORGE, formerly in employ of both Mrs. Lambert and Crosby; STRAWN and Dundee check the story that he spent the night in the tower room; recover from the lake Doris's apron, tied about fragments of the perfume flask and her vanity case; then return to their questioning of Mrs. Berkeley, who insists she did not see Doris after the maid helped her dress for dinner. Dundee reluctantly prods Mrs. Berkeley with questions, trying to force her to admit she saw the maid when she returned to her bedroom after quarreling with her husband the Friday. She insists she did not see or speak to Doris, but her husband interrupts: "Ah! he! he! he! tell these gentlemen the truth!"

HOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

"GEORGE BERKELEY, don't you dare insinuate that I'm lying!" Mrs. Berkeley, said, furious tears filling her pale blue eyes. "Mr. Dundee asked me if I saw Doris again, or spoke to her, and I told the truth when I said I didn't! I can't swear it was Doris who answered when I called her on the house phone."

"On the house phone? When?" Dundee demanded.

"While my husband and I were talking in the library last night," the woman answered defiantly. "As I told you, I thought I shouldn't need her to wait up for me, and had given her permission to retire when she pleased. But my headache got to be so bad while George and I were talking that I decided I'd need a massage of my forehead and spine. Doris is—was—awfully good at that sort of thing. So I rang her room on the house phone and someone answered."

"You did not recognize the voice as Doris's?" Dundee interrupted. "We-ell, I thought I did. I—I was rather upset, and it never occurred to me at the time that it could be anyone but Doris. She had a room of her own, you know, in the servants' quarters on the third floor. I told her to go to my room and wait for me."

"At what time did you call her?" "Oh, how do I know?" she burst out angrily, dabbing at her unhealed tears. "I wasn't watching clocks! But it was something like 15 minutes after George and I began to talk."

"And I suppose you counted on your husband feeling so sorry about your awful headache that he'd cut short the argument and let you have your own way?" Captain Strawn cut in, apparently distrustful of Dundee's more gentle methods.

"I refuse to answer such a question!" Mrs. Berkeley cried furiously.

WITH a slight smile Dundee put the next question: "Then how long was it before you went up to

"Then when was it you pushed the girl against the bathroom mirror, Mrs. Berkeley?"

your room, after speaking with Doris—or someone—on the house phone?"

"I don't know exactly. Half an hour, possibly. George simply wouldn't be reasonable—anyway, when I got to my room, Doris wasn't here, so I got into bed as quickly as I could and took the bromide tablet, and went to sleep."

" weren't you surprised and displeased to find your orders disobeyed?" Dundee asked quietly.

"We-ell, of course I was, but it was so late and I was feeling so wretched that I decided not to have a scene. Besides, I had already made up my mind to discharge the girl as soon as Mr. Crosby's visit was ended. He is to be with us only a week."

"You did not call her again on the house phone?"

"No, I didn't! Do I have to say so a dozen times?"

"You say you went to sleep very soon after you retired?"

"I didn't say so, but I did go to sleep very quickly, because of the bromide tablet, you know."

Without a word, Dundee rose, laid his notes on his chair, and strode swiftly to the bed. He stooped to pick up something from the floor and when he returned he was holding, rather gingerly, a damp ball of handkerchief.

"Did you cry yourself to sleep, Mrs. Berkeley?" he asked gently.

The woman shrank from the handkerchief as if it had been soaked with blood, instead of tears. "No—no, no! I didn't! I cried this morning after I'd heard about Doris."

"Pardon, Mrs. Berkeley, but the handkerchief you were using when Captain Strawn told you the news is the one you have in your hand now," Dundee corrected her courteously. "I remember the edging of archaic linen. This one is all white, as you can see. And the condition of this handkerchief shows that the tears were not recently shed. You tucked it under the edge of your pillow when you had finished weeping last night, I think, and it fell out when you arose this morning."

The woman collapsed suddenly and began to cry into the orchid-bordered handkerchief which had betrayed her lie. "Yes, I—I did cry myself to sleep, but if you're thinking it had anything to do with Doris—if you must know, I was crying because George had been so—so cruel, so pig-headed, so nasty to me!"

"Abbie!" her husband broke in sternly.

"Mrs. Berkeley, forgive me, but there are a few more questions I am compelled to ask you," Dundee began again soothingly. "First, aside from the fact that you disapproved of your son's interest in the girl, what was your own feeling toward Doris? Was the relationship of mistress and maid a pleasant one?"

"Of course it was! I wouldn't stoop to quarreling with a servant!" she sobbed out indignantly.

"Was she sulky or impertinent as she helped you dress for dinner last night?"

THE tear-reddened blue eyes looked startled, then roved wildly about the room as if seeking help. And when they encountered the stern gaze of George Berkeley they clung for a moment and grew wider.

"She—she wasn't like herself," Mrs. Berkeley admitted as if the words had been wrung from her. "She—she was clumsy."

"So clumsy that you became disgusted with her, spoke to her sharply, and after she had retorted impudently, you pushed her violently from you?" Dundee asked, his voice suddenly steely.

Captain Strawn hitched up his trousers and grinned approvingly. Now they were getting somewhere!

"I—yes!—I—yes!" Mrs. Berkeley gasped, her hand at her throat. Then again she collapsed against the cushions. "I might have known she'd tell tales—make a mountain out of a molehill! I didn't push her! I—I just slapped her cheek, not very hard, either, but she had been grossly impudent."

"Just when and where did this scene take place, Mrs. Berkeley?" Dundee asked.

"Why don't you ask Wickett, since he's already told you so much?" she cried angrily.

"Will you answer the question, please, Mrs. Berkeley?"

"Oh, can't you let me alone?" she wailed. Then, capitulating suddenly: "It was while I was dressing for dinner. I—I told her to open a new bottle of perfume I'd bought in the city yesterday, and—she said something impertinent."

"Just what did she say, Mrs. Berkeley?" Dundee pressed, a strange excitement in his dark eyes. "I—I don't remember!" the woman protested. "You don't expect me to remember every tiny thing, do you? . . . Well, it was just—just a word or two, like—"

She knit her brows, and Dundee was absolutely sure she was concocting a lie. "Oh, yes! She said, 'You use too much perfume, Madame.' Of course I was furious at such impertinence, and I—I slapped her face!"

"And where did this scene take place, Mrs. Berkeley?"

"Why, in here! I was standing before the full-length mirror in my closet door, and Doris was adjusting the shoulder straps of my evening dress," she answered quickly, and positively.

DUNDEE and Strawn exchanged glances, then the chief of the homicide squad decided to take a hand.

"In here, eh? You're sure it wasn't in the bathroom, ma'am?"

"Of course I am!" she shrieked. "I was standing right there—"

"Then when was it that you pushed the girl over against the bathroom mirror, Mrs. Berkeley?"

Strawn went on, his eyebrows raised.

"The bathroom mirror? . . . Why, I—I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Then let me show you, lady!"

Strawn invited grimly.

She struck out at his hand furiously as he endeavored to help her rise from the chaise longue, and scrambled to her feet, clutching her negligee about her fat body.

George Berkeley remained where he was, his chin propped broodingly upon a clenched fist, while the two detectives and his wife went into the luxurious bathroom.

"See that smudge, Mrs. Berkeley?" Strawn pointed to the mirror over the dressing-table. "Doris's lipstick. And the print of her mouth is smudged downward, proving beyond the shadow of a doubt that Doris Matthews was pushed against that mirror!"

"I didn't do it! I don't know anything about it! I swear I don't!" Mrs. Berkeley's teeth were chattering as she backed away from the telltale mirror. "I didn't kill her! That's what you're thinking! But I didn't kill her, I tell you!"

"Don't take on so, ma'am," Strawn advised. "I'm not arresting you—yet. I want to have a talk with your daughter, Miss Clara, first."

"Clara!" Mrs. Berkeley whispered, the blood draining from her face.

"Yes, ma'am. Seeing as how it was her silk scarf with which the rocks were tied into the girl's skirt—"

But Mrs. Berkeley heard no more, for she had fainted.

should be welcome news to those who have seen this couple in "The Broadway Melody."

"Cashing Rainbows" is a backstage story with real human interest, and it is doubtful if there is another pair of players on the Cinema Coast who can handle a vehicle of this kind with such finesse and artistry as these two. Miss Love plays a performer in a road show whose love affair with a fellow player, Charles King, progresses backstage, in cheap boarding houses and en route from one night stand to one-night stand.

more thorough understanding of the possibilities in the simpler and cheaper items of diet. Approaching her subject with the confidence of a recognized master, she will explain to the throngs of women who attend her free lectures at the Saenger theatre, the methods and means by which they may transform an otherwise soggy meal in to a delectable group of appetizing and captivating dishes, without adding one extra penny to the cost.

The hundreds of startling and amazing suggestions she will make regarding the preparation of new dishes, as well as old dishes in a new way, will prove a revelation to her listeners.

Presiding at a model kitchen, which will be installed for her use, the actual and practical demonstration of the preparation of meals by this nationally known expert, will bear a far reaching influence in Hope and the Hope trade territory.

Knowledge of how to cook and what to cook, is an exact and recognized science, closely related to a happier life and longer life," declares Mrs. Ihrig. "There are reasons why a meal unsatisfactory, as well as why it is appetizing. The theme of my lectures is to demonstrate by simple, practical solutions, the problem of serving varied and tasteful meals without increasing the expenditure for food."

The Star wishes to warn its women readers of the necessity of planning in advance to attend all of these lectures, since they constitute a logical series of developments on a program which worked out as units. The hundreds of thousands of happy housewives over the United States that attest to Mrs. Ihrig's wonderful assistance, form a remarkable background as a testimonial to this charming woman who is devoting her life toward aiding in the solution of culinary problems.

The Star feels that Hope is to be congratulated on being able to secure Mrs. Ihrig, and extends an invitation to all women of Hope and the trade territory, to be present at each of the lectures which will run for five consecutive days, from March 31 to April 4 inclusive.

Curtis Cannon Announces

for brief periods spent in Memphis and El Paso (Texas) papers. He formerly was a member of the editorial staff of the Arkansas Gazette. He now is publisher of the Hope Morning News.

Mr. Cannon issued a formal statement today, saying:

"I am entering the race for lieutenant governor after carefully considering the matter for several months. Hundreds of Arkansas citizens have asked me to enter this race so that I might carry on the fight for honest, economical government that I began in the last legislature.

"I have gone into nearly every county in the state in a preliminary survey of the political situation. I am convinced that the people are ready to throw out of office the machine politicians now in control and elect men who have at heart the interests of the state and its people.

"In my campaign I am going to advocate the same things that I advocated during the legislative session of 1929. I am willing to let my candidacy stand upon those principles for which I fought.

"I believe the affairs of the Arkansas Highway Department should be investigated by a capable committee from the Arkansas legislature. I believe the books of the department should be audited regularly. I believe the commission should be chosen by the people.

"Millions of dollars have passed through the hands of the present commission. Nobody knows where the money has gone. We do know that we have received only a fractional part of the roads administration leaders have been so free to promise and we do know we have never received full value for money spent by the commission.

"If I am elected lieutenant governor I am going to continue the efforts I have made to bring about an investigation of the affairs of the commission and am going to take an active part in the fight to change the acts of the last legislature and again give the people a voice in the selection of the commission.

"I favor and will work for a reduction in the number of employees in every department of the state government. The Parnell-Mathews-Blackwood machine has added every possible hireling to the payrolls of the state and greatly increased the burden of Arkansas taxpayers. The revenue department and the highway department furnish the most glaring evidence of this payroll loading, but other departments are carrying their full share of 'dead weight.'

"The lieutenant governor, as president of the Senate, has power to limit the expenses of that body. It is my belief that such expenses can be materially reduced without impairing the efficiency of the legislative organization. If elected, I will do my utmost to save the state thousands of dollars in this one item alone.

"There are dozens of other savings that a lieutenant governor with the interest of the people at heart, can and will accomplish. I will practice every reasonable economy.

"The present administration will center its efforts in this race to defeat Curtis Cannon. They do not want, and have never wanted an investigation or an audit of the highway department; they do not want the people to have a voice in the selection of a highway commission; they do not want the number of state employees reduced; and they do not want economy practiced.

"They not only shout 'To Hell with the Constitution,' but by their acts

FELT SO WEAK, OUT OF HEART

Stronger After She Had Taken Cardui; Says Nervousness Disappeared.

Bristol, Va.—"About a year ago, I found my health was giving way," writes Mrs. L. E. Jones, of this city. Mrs. Jones says she suffered from being very weak.

"When I would walk only a short distance up hill, my knees would tremble," she says, "and I would have to sit down."

"It was so run-down and tired I was all out of heart, and felt like crying all the time."

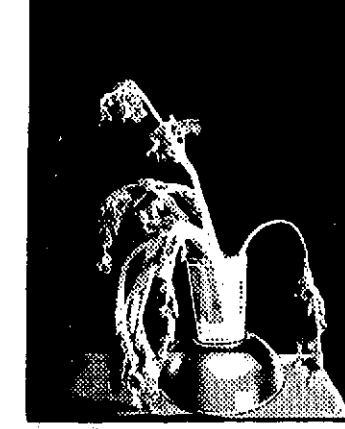

"I knew I would have to take something to give me strength to keep me going. I read about Cardui, and the good it had done others, so I thought it might help me. At any rate it would not hurt to give it a trial."

"After I had taken the Cardui, I was so much better and stronger, and the nervousness had disappeared. Now I am recommending Cardui to my friends."

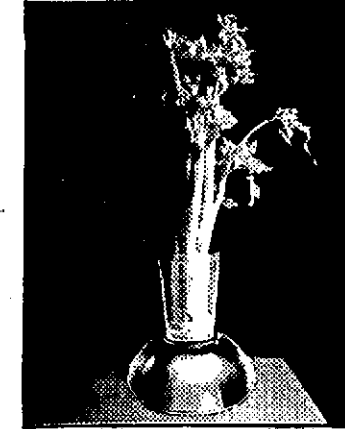

Experience of many thousands of users testifies that Cardui helps women to health.

Get Cardui from your druggist and try it for your troubles. N-504

Chevrolet announces

A NEW

SERVICE POLICY

The Chevrolet Motor Company and its nation-wide dealer organization are pleased to announce a new and broader service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

Put into force as a written and signed agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions:

- 1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate with maximum efficiency from the very first mile of ownership.
- 2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage.
- 3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation.
- 4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor.
- 5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the Chevrolet on materials and workmanship will remain in force.

This new policy constitutes definite proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship.

Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world.

There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts.

As a result, Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations!

In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy.

We May Be Crazy

But We Can't Keep From Buying New Dresses

One hundred new Spring dresses received today! And that's no lie.

The styles were so charming, the price was so tempting that we bought them. But we believe you'll like them, too.

If you're looking for the new modes in apparel, you know where to get them. And that's the Ladies Specialty Shop. It's not how cheap we can sell them, but how new and acceptable are the styles. That's the thing that counts.

Outstanding new styles priced from $5.95 to $39.75

And these prices are cheap for what you get here.
